Syria: The Launch of a Constitutional Committee – A Sign of Hope for Syrian People

By Peter Koenig

October 30, 2019

<https://www.globalresearch.ca/syria-launch-constitutional-committee-hope-syrian-people/5693438>

"[...]Speaking at a press conference on Monday, Pedersen said that the creation of the Constitutional Committee is a shared promise to the Syrian people to try in earnest to agree on new constitutional arrangements for Syria's future.

Russia, Iran and Turkey have stressed that Syrian constitutional committee must work independently from any foreign intervention to gain maximum support from the people in the Arab country.

Sergey Lavrov was reading a joint statement made by Moscow, Tehran and Ankara ahead of a meeting of Syria's constitutional committee in Geneva. Lavrov also highlighted the importance of Syria's unity and territorial integrity. He expressed the readiness of Russia, Iran and Turkey to cooperate with the United Nation's special envoy for Syria to facilitate the work of the constitutional committee. Lavrov urged the volunteer and safe return of Syrian refugees to their homeland. The Russian foreign minister also described the presence of the U-S troops in Syrian oil fields as illegal.[...]"

The empire, Trump and intra-ruling class conflict

By Gary Olson

November 2, 2019

<https://mronline.org/2019/11/07/the-empire-trump-and-intra-ruling-class-conflict/>

"[...] All his predecessors took pains or were coached to conceal their imperialist actions behind declarations of humanitarian interventionism but Trump has pulled the curtains back to reveal the ugly truths about U.S. foreign policy. As such, the carefully calibrated propaganda fed to the public in endless reiterations over a lifetime is jeopardized whenever Trump utters a transparent truth. This is intolerable. [...]"

"[...] Now, lest I be misunderstood, nothing I've written here should be construed as support for Donald Trump or that I believe he's antiwar. Trump is aberration only in that his brand of Western imperialism means that the victims remain foreigners while U.S. soldiers remain out of harm's way. He knows that boots on the ground can quickly descend into bodies in the ground and unlike his opponents, coffins returning to Dover Air Base are not worth risking his personal ambitions. This is clearly something to build upon. We don't know if Trump views drones, cyber warfare and proxies as substitutes but his intra-elite opponents remain extremely dubious. In any event, that's another dimension to expose and challenge.

Finally, we know the ruling class in a capitalist democracy — an oxymoron — expends enormous time and resources to obtain a faux “consent of the governed” through misinformation conveyed via massive, lifelong ideological indoctrination. For them, citizen's policing themselves is more efficient than coercion and precludes raising questions that might delegitimize the system. Obviously force and fear are hardly unknown — witness the mass incarceration and police murder of black citizens — but one only has to look around to see how successful this method of control has been.

Nevertheless, as social historian Margaret Jacoby wisely reminds us, “No institution is safe if people simply stop believing the assumptions that justify its existence.”(4) Put another way, the system simply can't accommodate certain “dangerous ideas.”

Today, we see promising political fissures developing, especially within the rising generation, and it's our responsibility to help deepen and widen these openings through whatever means at our disposal.”

Lebanon and Iraq Protestors: The US, Israel and Saudi Arabia are fed up with Iran

By Elijah J Magnier

November 7, 2019

<https://ejmagnier.com/2019/11/07/lebanon-and-iraq-protestors-the-us-israel-and-saudi-arabia-are-fed-up-with-iran-1-4/>

“The United States of America, Israel and Saudi Arabia are fed up with Iran and its allies in the Middle East. But despite waging war against Syria and Hezbollah in Lebanon, by inviting the Iraqi government to dilute al-Hashd al-Shaabi, by attempting to submit Gaza and to curb the Houthis in Yemen, it was not possible to break the strong alliances of Iran spread throughout the Middle East. Moreover, through democratic elections, Iran’s allies in Lebanon and Iraq managed to be part of the Parliament and have ministers in the cabinets of their respective countries. Also, in Syria, Iran’s strong ally President Bashar al-Assad is still leading the country notwithstanding years of war, and the attempts, through foreign and domestic intervention, to remove him from power. But civilian protestors- with legitimate demands against corruption and wealth mismanagement of the elite in Iraq and Lebanon throughout the years – are causing havoc in these countries, shaking the stability and therefore putting Iran and its allies on alert. Meetings are continuously held by the “Axis of the Resistance” to evaluate the situation, the possible threats, and the degree of involvement of foreign powers in the streets in attempting to curb this Axis.[...]

The ‘war’ for the future of Middle East

[...] Why now? Because what happened to Aramco on 14 September has shocked both Israel and America: the former Commander of the Israeli Air Force wrote recently, “recent events are forcing Israel to recalculate its path as it navigates events. The technological abilities of Iran and its various proxies has reached a level at which they can now alter the balance of power around the world”. [...]”

Nuclear Outlaw Israel Slams Iran's Legitimate Uranium Enrichment

By Stephen Lendman

November 07, 2019

<https://www.globalresearch.ca/nuclear-outlaw-israel-slams-iran-legitimate-uranium-enrichment/5694212>

"On Tuesday, Iranian President Rouhani announced his nation's 4th JCPOA pullback — permitted under the deal's Articles 26 and 36 when other signatories breach their obligations. That's precisely what happened. The Trump regime illegally abandoned the internationally binding agreement. Europe followed suit by breaching its JCPOA obligations. At the same time, the US and Brussels slammed Iran's legitimate rollbacks while continuing to ignore their own obligations. Double standards define Western and Israeli policies, a do as we demand, not as we do agenda.[...]"

U.S. Maximum Pressure Meets Iranian Maximum Pressure

By Ali Vaez and Naysan Rafati

International Crisis Group

November 05, 2019

<https://www.crisisgroup.org/middle-east-north-africa/gulf-and-arabian-peninsula/iran/us-maximum-pressure-meets-iranian-maximum-pressure>

"[...] A senior Iranian official told Crisis Group that "we are in a full-fledged economic war. Even during the oil-for-food program, Iraq, which had invaded another country [Kuwait], was allowed to export its oil. The U.S. can't strangle us and expect us to do nothing". As the government in Tehran sees it, responding on the nuclear front serves three objectives: pushing the JCPOA participants, particularly the Europeans, to step up what have thus far been faltering efforts toward relieving the burden of U.S. sanctions; signalling to Washington that the cost of its sanctions will continue to rise unless it provides Tehran with some economic relief; and satisfying public opinion at home. As such, the Trump administration, which was concerned about the sunsets on Iran's nuclear restrictions, has in practice moved forward the deadline for testing advanced centrifuges from 2026 and resumption of enrichment activities at Fordow from 2031 to 2019.[...]"

Iran has 'military advantage over US and allies in Middle East'

Thinktank says third parties such as Shia militias are more important to Tehran than nuclear plans

By Patrick Wintour (Diplomatic editor)

November 07, 2019

<https://www.theguardian.com/world/2019/nov/07/iran-has-military-advantage-over-us-and-allies-in-middle-east>

"Iran now has an effective military advantage over the US and its allies in the Middle East because of its ability to wage war using third parties such as Shia militias and insurgents, according to a military thinktank. In one of the most detailed assessments of Iran's strategy and doctrine across Lebanon, Syria, Iraq and Yemen, the International Institute for Strategic Studies (IISS) concludes Iran's "third party capability" has become Tehran's weapon of choice.[...]"

"Maximum Pressure". US Economic Sanctions Harm Iranians' Right to Health

Human Right Watch Report

October 29, 2019

<https://www.hrw.org/news/2019/10/29/iran-sanctions-threatening-health>

"[...]The 47-page report, "Maximum Pressure': US Economic Sanctions Harm Iranians' Right to Health," documents how broad restrictions on financial transactions, coupled with aggressive rhetoric from United States officials, have drastically constrained the ability of Iranian entities to finance humanitarian imports, including vital medicines and medical equipment. While the US government has built exemptions for humanitarian imports into its sanctions regime, Human Rights Watch found that in practice these exemptions have failed to offset the strong reluctance of US and European companies and banks to risk incurring sanctions and legal action by exporting or financing exempted humanitarian goods. The result has been to deny Iranians access to essential medicines and to impair their right to health. Under international law, the US should monitor the impact of its sanctions on Iranians' rights and address any violations sanctions cause.[...]"
