Will the collective West rise to defend the remaining Syrian Christians when the Black Flags come to purge them?

The standard modus operandi of the Hegemon is always Divide and Rule. Cornered by the inexorable rise of the multi-nodal (italics mine) reality, they saw an opening for an imperial reboot, betting everything on establishing the “Greater Middle East” outlined still during the Cheney era.

The iron axis of Straussian neocons, Zio-cons and Old Testament psychos in Tel Aviv is no-holds-barred obsessed on destroying the Axis of Resistance, using their transnational network of bloody killers to extend chaos and sectarian civil war all across West Asia. Throughout this ideal scenario they dream of mortally hitting the head of the snake: Iran.

Sultan Erdogan, playing the role of useful patsy, has proclaimed:

A “bright period” for Syria has begun.

Indeed. A bright period for Black Flag head-choppers and Tel Aviv bombers and land grabbers – feeding on the carcass of Syria.

The Old Testament psycho-pathological killers, via over 350 strikes, have totally destroyed all the military infrastructure of the former Syrian Arab Army (SAA); weapons factories, munitions, bases, fighter jets, including the Mezze air base in Damascus, Russian anti-ship systems, ships themselves (in Lattakia, close to the Russian naval base) and air defense positions.

In a nutshell: this is the NATO/Israel combo demilitarizing the former Syria – with not as much as a peep from anybody in the Arab world and the lands of Islam, starting with the Black Flag killers that have taken Damascus.

Couple that with trademark land invasion/grabbing, and Tel Aviv officially declaring a definitive annexation of the Golan – which legally belongs to Syria and whose restitution has been demanded by the UN after the 1967 war.

The Old Testament psycho blitzkrieg

In parallel, Turkish aviation bombed the former Russian-Syrian base in Qamishli, in the extreme northeast. The pretext: prevent that weapons would be grabbed by U.S.-backed Kurds and assorted Arab tribes. For the Russians this may not have been a big deal – as there was enough time to evacuate precious assets from the East of the Euphrates.

Russia has given asylum to formidable, and crucially uncorruptible, Suheil al-Hassan – a serious candidate to top military tactician and strategist in the world today. Russians bet on him as early as in 2015 – and provided for his personal security. Nobody in Syria enjoyed Russian bodyguards – not even Assad. He was the only commander who won de facto battles during the 10 days of the Fall of Syria.

Amidst a torrent of doom and gloom, what's taking place, fast as lightning, is NATO/Israel feeding on the carcass and dividing a dead nation with a gaggle of useful idiots and puppets – from fake woke Salafi-jihadis to Americanized Kurds. Obviously a collective IQ lower than any room temperature prevent this mob from realizing they are fighting for the same Suzerain.

Tel Aviv goons have advanced their blitzkrieg across the Damascus countryside and may be as close as 15 km to the south of the capital; a classic lebensraum gambit, part of their colonial project, coupled with obtaining maximum leverage on the Lebanese flank.

This is absolutely crucial, and extremely worrying for the Axis of Resistance: now all of southern Lebanon is exposed to a massive attack by the Israeli occupation – as the fertile plains between Chtoura in the Beqaa valley and Aanjar not only hold precious natural resources but provide a direct drive to Beirut.

Scorpions turn on each other

In parallel, Black Flags have taken over Damascus. There are massacres all across the spectrum – including religious leaders and scientists but mostly former Army officials, former members of Syrian counter-espionage, even civilians accused of being former military.

His Eminence, Sheikh Tawfiq al-Bouti, son of the famous sheikh Muhammad Said Ramadan al-Bouti, a former imam of the venerable Umayyad mosque, was assassinated in his Damascus madrasa.

Scorpions are predictably turning on each other; rival terror gangs to Hayat Tahrir al-Sham (HTS) demand that Jolani's goons liberate their members imprisoned in Greater Idlibistan, and now threaten to attack HTS.

In Manbij, Turk-backed terrorists openly kill Americano-Kurds in hospitals. Syria's north and northeast are mired in total anarchy.

Tribes that refuse to accept the Americano-Kurds and their communist-secular state project, and also refuse to join the Turk-backed Salafi-jihadi terror network, now are branded as "ISIS", and are duly bombed by U.S. fighter jets. Some may indeed still be ISIS: they were, before the fall of 2017, and there are still crypto-ISIS remnants roaming the desert.

The Russian army has positioned their ships as far as 8 km away from the Tartus naval base. That does not provide total security – because they still can be reached by drones and artillery as well as small boats.

For the aviation in Hmeimim, that's even more complicated. Moscow has already sent a clear message: if the base is touched, blowback will be devastating. HTS, for its part, has been mostly focused on occupying Latakia.

The future of the Russian bases remains a mystery: that will depend on a thorny, direct negotiation between Putin and Erdogan.

Jolani, the de facto new Caliph of al-Sham, will not become Leader at this initial stage, because he does scare most Syrians to death, irrespective of his mega-scripted "road to Damascus" woke conversion.

He will be self-appointed "military chief". A designated puppet – Mohammed al-Bashir – will be conducting the "transition" up to March 2025. It's virtually certain al-Bashir will be abhorred by virtually all factions. That will pave the way for repentant head-chopper Jolani to stage a coup and grab unlimited power.

It was in Syria, in Antioch, one of the most formidable cities of the Roman Empire, that the disciples of Jesus were denominated "Christians", from the Greek christianos. Antioch has been reduced to the small town of Antakya, as part of Turkiye. Sultan Erdogan dreams of Aleppo as also part of Turkiye.

Greek was the language of this corner of the Roman Empire: Latin was only used by the occupiers – military and management.

The church led by the patriarch of Antioch developed all across Syria all the way to the Euphrates.

Will the collective West rise to defend the remaining Syrian Christians when the Black Flags come to purge them – as they will? Of course not. The collective West keeps gloating on the end of the "dictator" as Black Flags and Old Testament vultures stage their Vampire's Ball over the corpse of a nation.
